DECLARES ALL TOP GERMANS SHARE GUILT

Dodd Asks Mass Punishment in Closing U. S. Case Against Nazis.

NUERNBERG — (INS) — The United States closed its case against the German war machine today by demanding conviction of Nazi organizations including the reich cabinet and Gestapo as the media for carrying out the mass war crimes.

Thomas J. Dodd, executive trial counsel at the international military tribunal, said the cabinet, political leadership corps, SS, SD, SA and Gestapo should be found guilty of criminal conspiracy, aggressive war, mass murder, slave labor, racial and religious persecutions and brutal mistreatment of millions.

Dodd declared that these organizations—"some Nazi-created, some Nazi-perverted"—were the agencies through which the 22 Nazi leaders on trial operated for the accomplishment of their criminal purposes over the complacent people of Germany and the conquered European nations.

America's final argument against the indicted organizations was delivered after Sir David Maxwell-Fyfe, British prosecutor, declared that all Nazi officials down to the level of block wardens are responsible for the atrocities committed by Germany during World War II.

Cites Death Toll.

Maxwell-Fyfe accused the organizations and the German general staff for the deaths of twenty-two million people.

Dodd, in his summation made for Chief American Prosecutor Robert H. Jackson, now back in the U. S., declared that the organizations "were all a part of, and essential to, the police state planned by Hitler and perfected by his clique into the most absolute tyranny of modern times." He added:

"That police state was the political Frankenstein of our era, which brought terror and fear to Germany and spread horror and death throughout the world.

"The leadership corps of the Nazi party was its body, the reich cabinet its head, its powerful arms were the Gestapo and the SA (Brown Shirts), and when it strode over Europe its legs were the armed forces and the SS (Black Shirts)."

"Deprive the Nazi conspirators of these organizations and they could never have accomplished their criminal aims."

6 QUALIFY

Planes Ready For Action in National Air Races.

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—Six planes today had qualified for the speed events of the National Air Races, five of them for the Thompson trophy event and one for the Sohio trophy race. The qualifying speed trials continue today.

Best time racked up yesterday was nearly 400 miles an hour set by Jack Woolems of Niagara Falls, N. Y. He flashed around the 30-mile course in his red P-39 Airacobra at 392.728 miles per hour.

The first accident of the air races occurred yesterday when pilot Robert A. Swanson of Cleveland badly damaged his P-51 in a forced landing. The plane will be out of competition for the $55,000 in race prize money.

Vet Needs Home for 3 Children

(In the hope Mansfield can find housing for some of the 400 veterans needing homes, the News-Journal is presenting daily one typical case.)

"A man with three children has a tough time getting them under the same roof with him these days. People don't seem eager to rent to veterans with children when they can easily rent to those without."

So says Norman Jurgens, today's veteran who points to months of fruitless searching for a home to which he can bring his wife and children from Tiffin.

Jurgens served two years in the South Pacific with the Signal Corps. He has a room with his father at 163 Lind avenue. His work prevents him from spending a lot of time home-hunting.

If you can help, call the Veterans' Information center (1730-6).

Loudonville Honors Its Famed Native Son, 'Boss' Kettering, On His 70th Birthday

By GEORGE KNOX
News-Journal State Editor.

More than 5,000 persons, among them many distinguished scientists, thronged Loudonville today to honor Charles F. Kettering, the Loudonville son who became a great scientist, on his 70th birthday.

An estimated 500 persons, including Orville Wright and W. S. Knudsen, director of General Motors, were served dinner at noon at the huge Kettering farm near Loudonville. They were served in a big building on the farm.

Men whose names have made the scientific news headlines for years came to the Ashland county village to pay honor to Kettering.

Many affiliates of Kettering in the General Motors organization arrived at the Mansfield airport by plane this morning and went to Loudonville by car.

* * *

LOUDONVILLE—(AP)—Charles Franklin Kettering, the man who came to tinker and ended up as one of the world's top inventors, celebrated his 70th birthday today honored by the people whose regard he cherished most—the hometown folks.

As avid after practical knowledge as in the far days when he puttered in a drug store backroom, the "Boss" knocked off for the day to receive the homage of this small Ohio town with obvious delight and his customary personal humbleness.

A birthplace's pride in its successful son was stacked against 42 honorary degrees, awards and fellowships bestowed by the great of the outside world—and it was a measure of the tall, slender man's greatness that the community birthday celebration brought now and then a tear to his study-

CHIANG READY TO CLEAR WAY FOR COALITION

U. S. Ambassador Heads New Committee Seeking United Government in China.

NANKING — (AP) — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek was reported reliably today to have approved the creation of a committee of five, headed by American Ambassador John Leighton Stuart, to clear the way for a coalition government taking in all parties.

This was regarded here as the most hopeful development in the Chinese situation in recent weeks.

It came as fighting in the north increased sharply in intensity, and as the Communists announced they might set up their own separate "national government" rather than accept any new constitution in which they did not have a voice.

The primary objective of Stuart's committee would be to bring the Kuomintang and minor parties together in a 40-man state council which would serve as an interim coalition governing body until a more permanent administration is formed at the Nov. 12 national assembly.

Premier T. V. Soong called on Ambassador Stuart today and presented the names of the government members—Wu Te-Chen, secretary-general of the Kuomintang, and Chang Li-Sheng, minister of the interior — who are slated to serve around the same conference table with Communists Ohou En-Lai and Tung Pi-Wu.

The government choices are scheduled to leave for the summer capital at Kuling tomorrow to receive instructions from the Generalissimo. The committee probably would not begin functioning until early next week.

The most difficult problem before the group would be to strike an acceptable voting balance to satisfy Communist fears of being dominated by the Kuomintang.

Formation of the council presumably would bring an end to hostilities and give General Marshall and the Communist and Nationalist members of his committee of three a free hand to proceed with the military reorganization of China and the restoration of disrupted communications.

DIES IN CRASH

Ex-Millersburg Man Killed in California Accident.

MILLERSBURG—Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Mast received word last night of the death of their son, Harvey Elverne Mast, 26, who was killed yesterday afternoon in a plane crash on the Pacific coast.

Mast, who was graduated from Millersburg high school in 1938, had been employed by the Pacific Overseas Airline corporation and was stationed at Ontario, Calif., at the time of his death. He was returning from a flight to San Diego when his plane crashed into a hill.

Besides his parents, he is survived by one brother, Pfc. Dale Mast, stationed in Germany, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Yoder and Mr. and Mrs. Abe Mast, all of Millersburg.

The body is to be returned to Millersburg where funeral arrangements will be in charge of the Hunter funeral home.

21 Cars, 4 Trucks Collide In Smoke

RICHMOND, Cal. — (INS) — Burning trash which sent a dense cloud of smoke across the highway was blamed today for the spectacular pileup of 21 passenger cars and four trucks near Richmond.

Nine of the cars could be driven away under their own power but the remainder were tow jobs. Seven persons were injured.

HEIRENS BARES DESIRE TO DIE

Youth's Letter to Parents Reveals His Attempts to Kill Self.

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—William Heirens, 17, confessed triple killer, told his parents in a letter made public today that while held on suspicion of murder he made many plans and two actual attempts to commit suicide.

The letter, written by the youth in his county jail cell while authorities were trying to obtain a confession from him, was disclosed by State's Attorney William J. Tuohy. The letter was seized by jailers and never was mailed.

In it, Heirens, confessed slayer of six-year-old Suzanne Degnan and two women, told of trying to tear open scalp wounds suffered when he was seized, and of trying to gouge his eyes out.

He wrote that he invented the fictional character of George Murman, to whom he attributed his many crimes. Authorities had believed that Murman was a manifestation of the youth's split personality.

Heirens also wrote that he was aware of his sexual abnormality which led him to commit burglary and murder. He tried to overcome his criminal urges, he wrote, by "dating girls."

The letter, addressed to "Dear Mon and Pad," was revealed as three prominent psychiatrists prepared a report on an exhaustive series of sanity tests given the youth.

13,000 Barrels Of Liquor Burns

FRESNO, Cal. —(INS)— A fire of unknown origin which consumed millions of dollars worth of bonded liquor in a warehouse six miles south of Fresno was brought under control by firemen early today.

A state forestry spokesman said liquor in the razed warehouse was expected to burn all night, but that there was no danger of the fire spreading to a million dollar industrial oil plant nearby. The value of 13,000 barrels, of bonded brandy and whisky in the warehouse was set by officials at $6,500,000, including $4,500,000 in taxes which the government would have claimed.

APPROVES NEW PLANTS

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The civilian production administration today approved construction of a new $725,000 factory here by the Ohlen-Bishop Manufacturing company and building of additions valued at $140,138 by the Heath Refinery of the Pure Oil company at its plant near Newark, Ohio.

Volunteers Go to Aid Of Hospital Patients

Nurse Shortage Hits City as Red Cross Sends Help From Shelby to Mansfield.

Twelve Red Cross nurses' aides today had volunteered their services for duty at General hospital to help alleviate an urgent need for additional help, Red Cross Nurses' Aide Chairman Mrs. George Draffan said.

General hospital has issued an urgent appeal for additional nursing help, due to a shortage of nurses. In addition to the fact that the hospital is crowded beyond capacity, some of the nurses are on vacation, high school girls who served as paid aides during the summer are returning to school, and additional help is needed until more cadet nurses arrive next month, it was said.

Mrs. Draffan said today that five Shelby Red Cross aides have volunteered their services and are currently working at the hospital. They are Mrs. Howard Skiles, Mrs. Edward Dreimiller, Mrs. Charles Nothacker, Mrs. Thomas Kelser and Mrs. Joseph Yohn.

Reports from the hospital indicate that the nurse situation has been growing steadily worse in recent weeks and the staff has been so depleted that operation of the hospital has been handicapped.

WINS POINT

Court Clears Mrs. Durant on Conspiracy Charge.

FRANKFURT — (INS) — WAC Capt. Kathleen Nash Durant was ruled not guilty of conspiracy today but her trial will continue on charges of theft of the Hesse crown jewels and being AWOL from the army.

She smiled for the first time in the seven-day-old military trial when the court upheld the defense's motion for a declaration of not guilty on the conspiracy indictment.

The trial was ordered continued until Sept. 16 to permit additional witnesses to arrive from the United States.

LAKE SAILORS WIN FIGHT FOR 48-HOUR WEEK

Selection of 'Overtime Day' Remains as Only Major Issue in Strike.

BULLETIN

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—Federal conciliators announced today that two more Great Lakes shipping companies—Interstate Steamship company and International Harvester — have reached agreements with the National Maritime Union (CIO).

DETROIT — (INS) — The only major issue in the 15-day old National Maritime union strike was believed today to be designation of the "overtime day."

The Lake Carriers' Association recommended that ship owners adopt a work week of 48 hours while at sea and 44 hours while in port — terms under which the MNU reached agreement with tanker companies and the Bethlehem Transportation company, of New York.

The association also recommended that wage scales for unlicensed seamen be adjusted to the recommended minimum, based on these hours.

NMU spokesmen at strike headquarters in Detroit commented that "the shorter work week is certainly what we are striking for, but the association fails to state what day will be paid for at overtime rates."

The NMU program calls for Sunday as the overtime day while at sea and Saturday the overtime day, after 12 noon, while in port.

Strike director and union Vice President Joseph Stack said he was awaiting a clarification of the association recommendation. He added that Vice President Jack Lawrence, who reached agreement with the Gulf Oil Co., in New York yesterday, would meet with officials of the Texas Oil company this afternoon.

SHELBY DEPOT CUTS BACK 200

Reduction of Personnel at AAF Station Largest Since V-J Day.

SHELBY — A cutback of approximately 200 employes was announced today for the Parsel AAF Specialized Supply depot. This will reduce the payroll to 1,000 persons by Oct. 1.

The cutback is the largest since V-J day when approximately 1,800 employes were on the payroll. More than 2,200 persons were employed at the Army Air Forces installation during its peak in the war.

No other cutback is expected after the October level, Lieut. Col. S. H. Raymond commented.

The depot, which was Shelby's largest place of employment during the war, has on the payroll more than 400 war veterans who will not be affected by the cut in the employment. The depot is continuing to supply parts to the Army Air Forces as well as to sell surplus war supplies.

French Launch 'Terrorist' Hunt

LONDON —(INS)— French police were reported today to be conducting a giant manhunt for "Jewish terrorists" suspected of being sworn to kill British Foreign Secretary Bevin.

Reuters reports from Paris said the searchers are looking for 14 persons believed to have been concerned with the King David hotel explosion in Jerusalem. The hunt was said to have followed a telephone warning from Scotland Yard that "terrorists are believed to be in France."

U. S. to Sell Surplus Directly to Veterans

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The War Assets administration has junked proposals to sell set-aside surplus items to veterans through commercial stores, it was learned today.

Instead the agency will expand and speed up its own retail operations, selling directly to GI's.

Goods will be sold to ex-servicemen over the counter not only at a score of site sales but at some of war assets' 23 district offices as well.

Administrator Robert M. Littlejohn has ordered his veterans' director, J. R. Campbell, to make it possible for every veteran to buy at least one item for his own use direct from government surplus.

Set-aside surplus goods include scores of choice items such as cameras and binoculars, sold to GIs only, either for business or personal use.

Other surplus sales are usually in quantity, with buyers reselling at retail. Set-aside items, however, are sold at retail, usually one-to-a customer.

Flood City Markets With Meat

Livestock was continuing to flood Mansfield markets today as farmers attempted to sell stock before price controls are put back on live animals Sept. 1.

The new live animal ceilings were to have gone into effect at midnight Wednesday but the OPA late yesterday announced a delay until Sunday to permit the agency to complete work on a new set of price tops for packers, wholesalers and retailers, reflecting the higher levels ordered by Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson.

Meanwhile a spokesman for the Kerns Packing company in Mansfield said that farmers are selling all stocks, even that not yet ready for market, in an attempt to get the higher prices. Both cattle and hogs are flooding the market, he said.

New livestock ceilings, in compliance with Anderson's order will be $16.25 per hundred pounds for hogs, or $1.40 higher than June 30 ceilings; $20.25 per hundred for choice cattle, or $2.25 higher than June 30; and $19 per hundred for lambs. There were no lamb ceilings on June 30.

* * *

CIO Protests.

The CIO today denounced the new livestock price ceilings as a "disastrous blow" to the American people and called for the ouster of the secretary of agriculture for decreeing them.

Chairman John Thornton of CIO's cost of living committee charged Anderson with yielding to industry pressure in ordering higher livestock ceilings than favored by OPA.

The meat industry also was dissatisfied with the new ceilings but for a different reason. The American Meat institute said the ceilings were lower than those obtainable on a free market and hence might lead to the return of the black market.

Wholesale and retail ceilings on meat will go into effect as originaly scheduled, Sept. 5 for wholesalers, and Sept. 9 for retailers. Retail prices are expected to go up about six cents a pound for beef, three cents a pound for pork, and six to nine cents for lamb and mutton over old ceilings.

New retail ceiling will be announced sometime next week.

End to Speed Hysteria Seen As Deaths Drop

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— The National Safety Council cited July traffic death totals today to show that the nation apparently had snapped out of its postwar "highway hysteria."

The July figure of 2,530 deaths was 23 per cent below the last peacetime July in 1941, the council said, and was the third month in a row in which the traffic toll was substantially under the prewar level.

An intensified safety program begun last May by President Truman's highway safety conference and backed by newspapers, magazines and radio was credited for the decrease.

"The break apparently has come," said Council President Ned Dearborn. "Four months ago the picture was very black, with a near-record traffic death toll in prospect. We've proved we can do it, but we still must prove we can keep it up."

WORK HALTS

Construction Workers Have Fuss in Cleveland Area.

CLEVELAND— (AP) —Virtually all construction in the greater Cleveland area appeared doomed to a temporary standstill today as the result of a dispute between the AFL Carpenters' union and 18 other AFL building craft unions.

The work stoppage by 24,000 tradesmen was ordered last night by the building trades council in protest against action of 4,500 members of the Carpenters' union in stopping work this week on all projects in Cuyahoga, Lake and Geauga counties except those benefitting veterans.

THREE HURT IN CRASH

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Two persons were in serious condition in Columbus University hospital today as a result of injuries suffered in a three way-crash between a car, a truck and a tractor. A third victim was said to be in fair condition.

TEMPERATURE OF 40 DEGREES SEEN TONIGHT

Clouds Are Likely to Prevent Damage From Frost But Crops Slowed.

Temperatures possibly several degrees below 40 and only a few degrees above freezing are in prospect for Mansfield tomorrow.

And furthermore, the U. S. bureau in Columbus informed the News-Journal in a telephone interview, "there's not much chance of warmer weather for a week."

From a reading of 62 at midnight, the mercury skidded rapidly to 49 at 9:30 a. m., the Ohio Public Service company reported. Readings fluctuated with 54 being recorded a few minutes before noon.

Although the Columbus weather bureau foresaw no immediate prospect for crop damage, it said the cool wave "certainly will slow up crops."

* * *

Showers Possible.

"Cloudiness forecast for tonight should prevent any prospect of frost," it added, explaining that Mansfield tomorrow likely would shiver in temperatures at least ten degrees below the low mark registered today. Some showers here are possible.

"The forecast is for mostly cloudy and much cooler," the weather bureau said. "It will be a little warmer tomorrow and fair Saturday."

In Washington, weather bureau officials, taking a nationwide view of the corn belt, foresaw a further reduction in the corn crop, the International News Service reported. The agricultural department, as a result of unfavorable growing weather the first half of August, already has revised its estimate of the corn crop downward some 55,000,000 bushels. It still, however, expects a record crop for the United States.

* * *

Freezing In Wisconsin.

The unseasonably cool weather is moving into Mansfield from Canada, the weather bureau informed the News-Journal.

"There's a big area of high pressure in the northwest, spreading through Canada and down south," it said.

In Land O'Lakes, Wis., a temperature of 26 degrees, six below freezing, was reported by The Associated Press. It was accompanied by a light frost.

* * *

Coolest In History.

Other low temperatures included 36 at St. Cloud, Minn., 37 at Wausau, Wis., 38 at Spencer, Ia., and 39 at Madison, Wis.

The Associated Press said Chicago shivered last night in 53-degree readings and that the weather bureau there forecast 45 tonight, which would "represent the coolest night in August in the bureau's history." The previous coolest August day was 46.9, August 25, 1917.

IDLES 12,000

Employes Refuse to Work on Cars For Export.

DETROIT— (U.P.)—Nash-Kelvinator Corporation announced today it had been forced to close its Wisconsin plants, idling 12,000 workers, because of an "unprecedented" refusal by some employes to work on cars for export.

R. A. DeVlieg, vice president in charge of manufacturing, said "we are not negotiating because there is no precedent for this kind of work stoppage and we really don't know what the next step would be."

Quads Have Bright Financial Outlook

PORTLAND, Ore. —(U.P.)— The Tigner quadrupets, a week old today, received a $4,000 down payment from a milk company, $175 a month as long as all four live and all the milk they can drink for life.

They also got a lawyer for a guardian. The milk company will spread the babies' pictures nationwide in its advertising. Their mother, 218-pound, six-foot Mrs. L. D. Tigner, will leave the hospital Friday—"to look for a larger house."

Mickey Sued for Contract Breach

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — (AP) — Crossing the Rio Grande, already an expensive pastime, will cost Mickey Owen another $127,500 if Porge Pasquel, the Mexican baseball overlord, can collect it.

Pasquel sued the Missouri farmer and former Brooklyn Dodger now barred from organized baseball for that amount yesterday in federal court. Pasquel claims Mickey violated a 5-year contract to play in the Mexican league. He asked $100,000 damages for the alleged breach of contract and the return of $27,500 he claimed was advanced to Owen as salary and bonus.

FARMER TELLS OF FRUGAL DIET

Bread, Soup and Macaroni All Some War-Torn Villages Enjoy.

Daily diets consisting entirely of bread, soup and macaroni in some of the villages of war-torn European countries were described last night by C. D. Blubaugh, noted Danville, Ohio, experimental farmer.

Speaking before the Lions club at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, Blubaugh graphically recounted his experiences as one of a party of laymen recently completing an eight-week aerial tour. The group investigated food conditions and the handling of supplies by UNRRA in seven countries, including Greece, Poland and Italy.

Blubaugh said UNRRA's handling of supplies was found to be "good and without discrimination." People in the countries visited were described as making every effort to produce all that was possible for themselves and as grateful for United States help.

Preceding the talk, P. R. Maxwell, 620 Cook road, was presented with Lions Senior Master Key No. 398 by District Governor Clarence Jenkins who later in the evening spoke on Lionism.

SHELBY SCHOOLS READY FOR FALL, CARMEAN SAYS

Redecoration Completed, New Equipment Added, and Damage Repaired.

SHELBY—Work of refurnishing and redecorating the school buildings and class rooms has been completed in preparation for the opening of the fall term Tuesday, Sept. 3, at 1 p. m., Supt. Byron Carmean said today.

The buildings have been cleaned inside, the desks sanded and refinished and many of the classrooms have been paintd. Nine men have been on the job most of the summer getting things ready for the new school term. Earl Brissel, head custodian, has been in charge of the work.

A new sound projector has been added to the school's equipment. "We are looking forward to developing an extensive visual education program," Supt. Carmean said.

"It can't be done all at once but we shall add to the program as we go along."

The school superintendent disclosed that the new projector permits stopping a film and showing a still picture of some view under discussion.

Work that has been done to the high school building consists of the 800 lockers newly painted, the marble floor shellacked and the asphalt tile floors waxed.

Desks in the biology room have been placed on a more convenient level, and have been sanded and refinished. Darkening shades have been installed. Tables have been refinished in the cafeteria room and the walls decorated. The gym floor has been refinished and new lines painted.

The biggest job was in the athletic dressing room in the basement where water flooded rooms to a depth of nearly three feet early last summer. Dressing rooms, showers, lockers and toilets have been repainted. The new office and rub-down room for the athletic department has been painted.

U. S. FUNDS AID LUNCH PROGRAM

Crawford Rural Schools Share on Dollar-For-Dollar Allocation Plan.

BUCYRUS — Crawford county's ten schools in the rural school system will again share in the federal aid program for financing school lunches, Supt. Milton Harman said today. The schools this year will provide the school lunches under a new act which calls for allocation of federal funds to states on a dollar-for-dollar basis.

In the county schools last year total financial outlay for cafeteria and school lunches was $24,085.84 which included food and salaries.

To date five of the ten rural schools are without home economics teachers and two of those, New Washington and Leesville, will open next week without those departments, which will make necessary an adjustment in personnel in the school lunch program.

Home economic teachers supervise the programs where that department functions in a school.

MARKET RALLY EFFORT GAINS WEAK SUPPORT

Fears of Spreading Strikes, Growing Foreign Tension Restrain Purchases.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Further rallying tendencies appeared in today's stock market although suport was rather apathetic and early advances running to a point or more failed to hold in many cases.

Persistent foreign tension and fears of spreading strikes in the fall still served as purchasing restraints.

Dealings slowed appreciably after an active opening.

On the upside were Goodyear, Goodrich, Bethlehem, Great Northern, N. Y. Central, American Smelting, International Nickel, Phelps Dodge, Texas Co., Eastman Kodak, Johns Manville, Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, General Electric, American Water Works, Du Pont and Montgomery Ward.

Declines were recorded for General Motors, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, International Harvester, American Telephone, Western Union "A," Standard Oil (NJ) and Kennecott.

KILIAN GUILTY

Court Convicts Prison Camp Colonel For Cruelty.

BAD NAUHEIM — (UP) — Col. James A. Kilian, Chicago, was found guilty today of permitting "harsh, cruel and unusual punishment" to be inflicted on soldier prisoners at the Lichfield detention camp.

Kilian was found guilty by a seven-man military court that fined him $500 and ordered him to be reprimanded. Kilian was commanding officer at the camp.

Brief Illness Ends In Death

Mrs. Pearl A. Young, 75, widow of Ira Young, died this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Schultz, 331 West Fourth street, after a brief illness. She was born at Mifflin and spent her entire life in this community.

Surviving are four sons, Dewey of Detroit, Mich., Harold, Harry and Russell of Mansfield; and one daughter, Mrs. Schultz, with whom she made her home. She also leaves eight grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren. The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held Saturday at 10:30 a. m., in charge of Rev. Ben. F. Hagelbarger, pastor of First Christian church. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

Greeks Fight as Plebiscite Nears

ATHENS —(INS)— A running encounter between Greek police and roving bands entered its third day today as reports said a number of persons already lay dead on a central Macedonian battlefield.

Intermittent clashes between leftist bands and government authorities, common occurrences during the past year, appear to have increased on the eve of the plebiscite on the return of King George II.

INCOMES GROWING

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Figures compiled by government experts today indicate that individual incomes will set a record of around $165,000,000,000 this fiscal year—exceeding the booming war year of 1945 by $5,000,000,000.

HOLD FUNERAL

ELKTON, Ky.—(UP)—Funeral services will be held this afternoon for the late James Clark McReynolds, former supreme court justice, who died in Washington last Saturday after an illness of several weeks.

HELD FOR INVESTIGATION—

Two men who gave their address as Buffalo, N. Y., today were held in city jail for investigation. The men were picked up by officers of the Ohio State Highway Patrol who said that no charges had been filed at noon today.

LOUDONVILLE HONORS FAMED SON, KETTERING

Mingling with the citizens of this Ashland county town were the executives of General Motors corporation, which "Boss" Kettering has served with his skill since 1920.

"Ket" now is vice president and director of that giant corporation and is its research director—a post of great industrial dignity. But, he oiled up the voice which for so many years now has been devoted to preaching the credo of the research engineer, for a song with the town quartet. He hadn't forgotten he once was a bonafide warbler with that same group.

On the other hand, Loudonville hadn't forgotten—forgotten that the skinny little son of Jacob and Martha Hunter Kettering was the genius of more inventions than Loudonville had tenors.

This city remembered he had invented the automobile ignition system, the first practical self starter, refrigeration, and the first practical electrically operated cash registers and business machines.

They remembered his work in the development of a farm home lighting system, of high-test gasoline, of Diesel type power plants and artificial fever therapy machines.

They remembered all that—and more: That in his late 60s, this famed man launched his own personal attack on cancer, endowing a foundation with his own money. That he still knew the common man by his first name and had a smile and a story.

So, they turned the town over and spread 3,500 citizens hodgepodge over the streets. They trotted out a costume pageant and displays of all those Kettering achievements and a birthday cake more than six feet tall.

It was the loudest pat on the back in this town's history.

Says Firms Can't 'Hogtie' Audience

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The National Labor Relations Board ruled today that an employer may present "temperate" anti-union arguments to his employes but may not hold them "captive" to listen to what he has to say.

In its first explicit ruling on employers' rights under the Wagner Labor Relations act, the board by a two to one vote found that Clark Brothers, Olean, N. Y., had committed unfair labor practices during a bargaining election.

Police Get Conflicting Stories of How Mansfielder Was Injured.

Eddie Knapp, of 373 East First street, was in General hospital today where he was treated for a broken leg and arm while police were investigating conflicting reports of how he received his injuries.

Knapp told police that he had fallen when they called at his residence to investigate a report of an injured man, but another report indicated that he might have been hit by a car.

Meanwhile three persons were treated today at General hospital for minor bruises and abrasions when their car skidded and overturned one-half mile south on U S Route 42.

Kenneth McBride, 26 of Leicester, N. Y., was the driver of the overturned car, while riding with him in the car were Pvt. George Dixon, 19, of Boston Mass., and Hugh C. Creveling' 24, of Mt. Morrison, N. Y.

McBride and Creveling were headed for Marion while Dixon was enroute to Camp Campbell, Ky.

Evelyn Steltz, 27, of Bellville, was admitted to General hospital today for treatment after she caught her finger in a punch press at the Westinghouse plant. Her condition was reported as good by hospital attaches.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 29, 1946

Headline says: "Chaos Rules Meat Industry"—which may be intended as another name for OPA.

Attendance records are being broken at the state fair in Columbus this week—a place to go, that explains it.

Remember about that, "Home, home on the range—where seldom is heard a discouraging word"—well, it's probably not for rent or sale.

Unity Difficult In Strife-Torn India

WHILE the much talked of "independence for India" seems moving toward at least a change from the irksome British domination that has extended over almost two hundred years, no abrupt shift to self government throughout India can be anticipated.

Clash of religious beliefs and varied interests is too great to justify any such optimism and the recent bloody rioting between Moslems and Hindus in Calcutta which resulted in around 4,000 deaths and made more than 100,000 homeless, gives an idea of the hatred that exists among the "fellow-countrymen" of these two factions.

When it is taken into account that the vast sub-continent of India has a history of struggle, warfare and accomplishments running back 5,000 years, it is easier to realize that the situation now existing is little more than a present-generation episode in a continuing story, rather than approach to the final chapter.

Probably few people realize, as pointed out by DeWitt Mackenzie, foreign affairs analyst for the Associated Press, that comparatively recent archeological discoveries are said to establish that as far back as 3000 B. C., India had reached a state of civilization superior even to the Egypt of those days.

Then, in 2000 B. C., began the Hindu period, which lasted until 1001 A. D. This was followed by the Mohammedan era, which carried through to 1757 A. D., when the great Clive, by his victory at Plassey, laid the foundation for the British rule which has held, sometimes precariously, until now.

The interim government now being established, it should be understood, is more experimental than perfected, as only a part of the country will be immediately affected.

India is divided into two sections—British India, comprising the provinces under the government at New Delhi, and some 600 native states which are ruled by princes and less bejeweled potentates under British domination. Rulers of these states have not yet agreed to co-operate in the new plan, and it is the disposition of these native states that is one of the big problems—not so big, however, as that of establishing a semblance of unity between Moslems and Hindus.

Another Traffic Light Experiment

IRREGULARITY of Mansfield's downtown street blocks, with varying distances involved, may be responsible for the inclination of officials to experiment with traffic lights, in the hope of expediting traffic without increasing danger to either motorists or pedestrians.

Changes in co-ordinating and "staggering" lights have been made from time to time, usually followed by a change back to the original idea of allowing travel of a single block between light changes, which is designed to discourage drivers inclined to putting on speed in an effort to "beat the light."

Just how much thought was given to the most recent change, which shows a green light for several blocks in one direction, has not been stated, but first impression is that this will tend to increase speed toward intersections rather than reduce it.

There is, however, the thought expressed by Mayor Vaughn, that the system adopted as an experiment may break up traffic bottle-necks and eliminate "creeping" driving.

Anyhow it will be interesting to watch what comes of it.

Youthful 'Baby-Sitters' Organize

CHILDREN are quick to learn—and to imitate practices of their elders—so it is not surprising to hear that a "baby-sitters union" has been formed by high school girls in West Branch, Mich., nor is it odd that these young girls start right out by putting more emphasis on what they WILL NOT DO than what they WILL DO—or putting it bluntly, they want more money for doing less work.

The Detroit News is somewhat disturbed by this development, and comments editorially: "It would be wrong to blame the girls: a girl of high school age today has lived all her life in an atmosphere which puts a premium on spending, not saving; on clock-watching while at work; on getting away with a minimum of effort; on constantly demanding more pay; on shorter working hours to provide more loafing time; on grab and gimmie, and t' heck with the other fellow. The poor things simply don't know there is any other kind of world!

"But if our forefathers from the 1700's on down had had the same kind of dizzy notions, the United States would not have moved west of the Alleghenies! It was not loafers, but daring men, hard-working men, unselfish men and women, who built this country."

Think it over, young men and young women—as well as boys and girls—some of you may see the point.

Better Health for the Eskimos

ESKIMOS of the eastern Arctic are learning about the gadgets of modern medicine. About 2,000 of them, scattered over the north country, are being X-rayed and otherwise examined by Canadian officials making the rounds on the ship Nascopie.

The common theory that tuberculosis is prevalent among Eskimos is not proving true in the X-rays, which have revealed very few cases so far. The part of the service most appreciated by the natives is the eye testing. That they understand, and they are joyful at being able to see through the magic glasses made for them.

If the health officials can also teach the Eskimos some principles of cleanliness and control of contagious diseases when they do strike, they will do much to insure the future of the tribes.

Latest from the Philadelphia bakers' strike is that: "Householders unable to get bread of any sort, have had to be content with toast"—which is a nice trick if you can do it.

FOOTPRINTS ON A DANGEROUS ROAD

Origins and Objectives Revealed In Firmer Policy Toward Russia

By RAYMOND MOLEY

THE MOST serious duty of the American press these days is not only to report the facts concerning Europe and Asia, but to keep the public informed of the long-run attitude of the American government in foreign affairs.

This latter is most important because, in the nature of things, mass public opinion cannot keep up with rapidly changing facts abroad. It must depend upon Secretary of State James F. Byrnes in Paris with his helpers and upon the final judgment of President Truman in Washington or elsewhere.

A long succession of critical decisions must be made for which the president and secretary of state must assume quick responsibility.

And upon the ultimate outcome of these decisions may depend the whole future. The rest of us can only watch, hope and try to keep informed.

This being true, it is just as necessary to know what Messrs. Truman and Byrnes think of the facts as to know the facts ourselves. The most reliable information of what is in the minds of our responsible officials is something like this:

Some months ago, the attitudes of President Truman and Secretary Byrnes toward Russia were, to a degree, different. The secretary of state leaned more toward compromise with Russia's demands. Mr. Byrnes is essentially a negotiator.

His years in congress taught him that, in passing legislation, half a loaf is quite an achievement; that the main thing is to keep matters from boiling over into an open brawl, and that the appearance of unanimity is a very high ideal.

We cannot quarrel with this, because, as Lord Morley said, all statesmanship is based on compromise. In any event, this is the natural turn of the Byrnes mind.

Mr. Truman seems to have reached a decision some months ago that a much stiffer attitude must be taken toward Russia than that which marked the war years and the months immediately after the war.

He impressed this view upon Mr. Byrnes and, because he was president and Mr. Byrnes was secretary of state, the ultimate policy turned toward greater resistance toward the Soviet government.

The objective of either compromise or firmness is the same. It is to keep out of war and to get the world on a firm footing once more. No one can guarantee which method is best suited to the desired end. It is especially hard to know because the curtain of censorship and suspicion around Russia is so heavy.

It is impossible to know the connection between what the Soviet government really wants and what it says it wants. The evidence in favor of a firm policy is in recent history. Mr. Truman evidently believes that a firm, tough attitude toward Hitler 10 years ago might have prevented war.

Whatever may be the truth of this analogy, this is what our government believes. In pursuing this policy, the American people will experience recurring shocks. And these shocks may continue a long time.

War, however, is not inevitable. There are hopeful elements in the situation which will cushion us against these disturbing events. One is the fact that Secretary Byrnes is a very able negotiator. Unless Mr. Molotov is something less than human, Mr. Byrnes will find means of bridging the gap between their general outlooks.

What happens in diplomacy is that ultimately what are called formulas are made, which make agreemen t more possible. A second element of hope is that, as western Europe recovers, it will be less and less fertile ground for Communism and there will be less encouragement to the Soviet to push for more political penetration.

A final element of hope is that, if the next year or two can be muddled through, a process of evolution will take place in Russia itself.

The leaders of the revolution are now well along in years. Kalinin is gone. Litvinov is out. Stalin is in the sunset of life, and Molotov grows no younger. As the inevitable turnover occurs, there may well be a change in policy which will bring East and West closer together.

But for the time being, Americans will find plenty of stimulation in events abroad.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Sunday, August 29, 1926.

It was announced that "investors" in the defunct R. L. Dollings company would receive 13 cents on the dollar.

According to Herman F Schwarz, 2,507 automobiles passed his home in South Boulevards between 7:15 a. m. and 7:15 p. m.

Dental office of Dr. B. L. Conway, 3½ North Main street, was burglarized.

Daughter was born to Mr and Mrs. George T. Demon, 93 Waring avenue.

J. H. Gongwer went to Mt. Gilead to continue as high school principal for a year before opening law office here.

Mr. and Mrs W J Hazeltine, Helen avenue, returned from a trip to Yellowstone Park.

Paul Wingert, 75, died at his home, 65 Altamont avenue.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

A stone building consisting of seventy-two rooms and containing skeletons, pottery and other relics, was unearthed on August 29, 1912, at Stanley, New Mexico, by an expedition sent by the Museum of Natural History, New York.

Dave Boone Says:

THE U. S. emergency court of appeals has set a precedent for the rest of the country by turning down a New York test case in which an apartment-house landlord sued to get higher rents than OPA permitted. The court finds the landlords are doing fairly well.

I figure the judges just went out and tried to find an apartment at any price. Nobody loves a landlord anyhow and you can't expect a court to break that tradition.

Mothering Doesn't Mean "Smothering."

THERE is all the difference in the world between mothering and (s)mothering a child, but many well-meaning, and even loving, parents fail to realize it.

It goes without saying that children need gentle care and guidance. But they also need spiritual room to grow. In other words, they need, sometimes, to be let alone.

In all-too-many homes today, the opposite condition prevails. Children are constantly managed and supervised until every impulse toward independence and initiative is smothered and choked off before it has time to develop.

Basic Fear.

This tendency to guard the child by planning and arranging its whole life is called over-protection. Basically it is due to fear on the part of the parents but there may be other factors, too, according to Dr Cecil S. E. Touzel of Texas.

For example, a mother often has the desire to bask in the glory of a super-child. Parents often wish to give the baby a better start in life than they had, or a happier childhood with fewer problems. Parents become fearful that the child will not measure up to the children of friends.

Then, too, parents often become confused about child training because of masses of information and advice which they receive from various sources such as schools, government, and women's clubs.

Proper Instruction.

Parents should make an effort to obtain proper instruction for the important problems concerned with rearing a child and, particularly, must they be taught that over-protection can be definitely harmful for the child's future.

Mothers must be taught that whether the child takes a half an ounce or an ounce of orange juice or gets his first tooth at seven months instead of six months is not a matter of any great consequence.

Every effort must be made to allay the mother's fears concerning the child, and to keep her from magnifying little illnesses and little problems. Such things as poor appetite, poor sleeping habits, and temper tantrums often will quickly disappear if the parents can just be taught to let the child grow up.

The goal in child rearing is the happy, well-adjusted adult, who can meet life's problems and solve them without too much dependence on others. Over-protection produces grown-ups who have nothing but physical maturity.

This does not mean, of course, that the child's health and welfare are to be neglected but only that parents must learn the golden meaning between too much concern and too little.

Paul Porter Subs for Pearson, Acclaims Greatness of Barkle

(Editor's Note: While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, his column will be written by several distinguished guest columnists—today's by Paul A. Porter, administrator of the Office of Price Administration.)

By PAUL A. PORTER

WASHINGTON—I want to use this space to write about one of the greatest living Americans. He is not now a candidate for office so what I say can do him no harm. I am the administrator of a temporary agency that has only one year to go, so I cannot justly be charged with attempting to curry his favor.

And the further fact that no words of mine could add to his stature or diminish the luster of his distinguished career leaves me the justification that he is a fellow Kentuckian and my senator and I want to say what I think about him.

It is my firm belief that when historians are able to appraise objectively the developments of this era, those with perception will conclude that Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky as much or more than any single individual preserved the functions and integrity of representative government during a period of great change.

As majority leader of the year t ogo, so I cannot justly be United States senate, his has been one of the most difficult of all post-war assignments. Our system does not surround the office of majority leader with the apparatus of protection and staff work which properly serve the White House or cabinet positions or even a lowly price administrator.

The majority leader is directly exposed to all the pressures of his own constituency, and in addition must bear the burdens that flow from the vast and complex welter of legislative problems that his responsibility requires he master.

Moreover, he is on the firing line of legislative debate, day in and day out, and has the duty of guiding through the shoals and quicksands of controversy a program which is composed of many issues, great and small.

This is a task that requires the ability to exercise promptly a thousand judgments. It calls for a sound concept of strategy and great personal leadership. These qualifications are possessed by my senator to an unexcelled degree.

Barkley Pressed Congress.

The 79th congress did not accomplish all that everyone hoped or expected. Much of President Truman's program was not enacted into law. There were compromises and adjustments that, depending upon one's point of view, were unsatisfactory. Certainly I was not satisfied with the ultimate decision on price control. But most of these deficiencies relate to transitory issues which perhaps are not too important as measured by time.

On the basic challenge of the day, the 79th congress, in my judgment, did measure up. It forever sealed, I hope, any doubts that the United States will not fully discharge its world obligations in this atomic age.

Further, it gave to the world a ringing example of a representative government functioning for a free people while other systems were fumbling and struggling for stability.

It is wll known that Senator Barkley's hero is Woodrow Wilson. These two figures have much in common in their philosophy of government and concept of public responsibility. The kind of enduring liberalism espoused by Wilson and championed and made effective by Barkley in this generation is the course where lies the greatest hope for America.

Indeed the New Deal of Roosevelt of which Senator Barkley was one of the principal legislative architects was, I suspect, in the senator's view merely a timely evolution of Wilsonian ideals.

Famous Raconteur.

I have watched Senator Barkley's career with deep interest since as a young newspaper reporter I covered his first campaign for the senate 20 years ago. I have known of his genius as a tireless campaigner. I have listened many times as he would draw upon his unlimited repertory of stories which have made him the senate's most famous raconteur. I have known him as a friendly and tolerant man of great ability.

But personal experience with Senator Barkley in the legislative crisis on price control this summer afforded me my first real opportunity to obtain a first-hand knowledge of his great capacity as a legislator, as a lawyer and as a leader.

I was called to the White House when Senator Barkley and his associates of the Democratic leadership urged President Truman to approve the first price control bill. In earnest tones, Senator Barkley insisted that the president sign the bill. The president was obviously reluctant not to follow the advice of his party leaders.

Upon analysis of the first bill's provisions, however, the president concluded he could not approve it and with great courage he exercised his constitutional rig veto. Thus four and or months of a bitter legislativ tle resulted in a stalemat the responsibility was turne to the congress.

Barkley Backed OPA.

Senator Barkley again dered the burden. A lesse would have balked. With co mate patience and skill, he a new measure through co tee, through the senate and conference. During swel Washington weather, he w with the senate committe and night and would take Washington home a full bri and work some more.

Kentucky has provided t tion with its full quota of l ship in this administration. is the distinguished Chief J Fred M. Vinson; Wilson the veterans' housing expe Keene Johnson, under sec of labor; and others in po of responsibility and trust. they as well as the people o tucky join me in the conc that, as Woodrow Wilson s Henry Clay, there is no m his generation who repr more of America than Alb Barkley.

Those "Big" and "Little Big Inch" Pipelines.

WASHINGTON — Warfare being what it is today, the beating of swords into ploughshares is an enormously complicated business. Take, as a prime example, the two pipelines built by the government during the war, at a cost of $146,000,000, to move oil and aviation gasoline to the eastern seaboard.

Those lines—the Big Inch and the Little Big Inch—were two vital swords. As the climax of D-day drew near, they poured a continuous river of oil and gasoline into the terminals at Philadelphia and Linden, N. J.

But when the war ended, the clamor of conflicting economic interests began immediately. Even though petroleum products were still scarce on the eastern seaboard, the pipelines were closed down while the echoes of the VJ-day celebration still sounded. That was thanks to pressure from the big oil companies.

At the same time a barrage of propaganda was turned on, all of it to the effect that Big Inch and Little Big Inch were white elephants which no one would conceivably want to buy. In business and oil journals, stories appeared saying that the best the government could hope to do would be to keep the 1340 miles of Big Inch and the 1475 miles of Little Big Inch in stand-by condition to be used in event of another emergency.

The oil companies didn't want the pipelines sold and operated for the simple reason that there would be more profit, or so it seemed at the time, if oil and gas were shipped from Texas by company-owned tankers.

The War Shipping Administration had set up some very fancy tanker deals which would have made it possible to turn back an old tanker to the government in exchange for a new one and get an allowance on the old one of considerably more than it had cost.

Moreover, the anti-trust division of the department of justice had stepped into the pipeline situation. The D. of J. had compelled the companies to sign a consent decree under which it was stipulated that shipper-owners should get a return of not more than 7 per cent on the money they had put into pipelines. That was a far cry from the 25 per cent and up of the good old days. And, incidentally, the FBI is now conducting an investigation to make sure the companies are living up to the terms of the decree.

So the companies wante Inch and Little Big Inch buried. So also did powerf litical forces aligned with John L. Lewis and his Mine Workers huffed and at this alleged threat t miners' livelihood. The Na Coal association did likewis

Converted to gas, the two lines could supply the total ket for manufactured gas east and still leave a lot lef for new gas users. Here, ever, an important conside entered in. In the careful worked out by the Surplus erty administration, it was fied that the lines would "tally necessary" in an emergency.

Therefore they should be if at all possible, to carry If they were used for gas, industry and householders pendent on the supply, no sp switchover could be made in event of another war.

Just the other day, 16 bi Big and Little Big Inch wer emnly opened. These bids from $70,000,000 to $135,00 Several of the bids are from panies that would use the to transport oil.

Farmer's Diary: "Early Autumn Morning."

I HAVE often wondered and felt a sense of awe at the dawning of a day. Just at dawn a holy quiet reigns, so complete and wonderful that with all my being I long to be a part of such a calm—that is not the lull before a storm—but the promise of a lovely day-to-be.

The rural valley homes enveloped in veils of slowly moving fog, the trees that stand with worn leaves dripping; the winding creek flowing without a murmur between its banks, all are living parts of the dusky landscape that soundlessly emerge.

That strange quiet is so real that I feel the presence of a great force beyond, that is far too powerful for sound, but rolls without confusion, like the silence of moving waters beneath the surface of the ocean.

I like to stand upon the little hillside above our house and be a small human dot in the midst of trees and shrubs that tower above me. The fertile valley stretches for miles, both east and west. The wooded hills, and the fertile fields beyond my view stretch in almost limitless distance. The soft amber of the early morning sky has no bounds of human measurement.

I watch the smaller stars fade out first, and even while I ponder, the more brilliant ones have vanished. Already pink streamers rise and the gray and purple of the darkened sky retreats in all directions. All is slumber yet, except the cock that crows from the barnyard, but fair day is moving rapidly over the eastern hills.

A song sparrow trills from a bush below me, a sleepy robin chirps from an apple twig, a solitary crow flies easily across the valley, a rabbit with its fur wet on legs and belly ambles to a temporary hutch for rest, the re noiselessly slinks into his de

Greek King Waits to Learn If People Favor His Return

LONDON —(UP)— King George of the Hellenes sealed himself off from the public today while he waited to see whether the Greek people want him to return.

The royal suite at Claridge's buzzed with activity of George's entourage as the time neared when a Greek prebiscite Sunday will provide the answer as to whether he can return to the throne.

Maintains Silence.

While his fate hung in the balance of the homeland ballot box, George maintained a discreet silence. The British foreign office was understood to have suggested that it would be preferable if the plebiscite were conducted without an expression from the person it will affect most.

Both George and Col. Dmitri Levidis, for many years his achates, declined to see visitors. An aide tactfully explained that under the circumstances it was "absolutely impossible" to permit the king to be quoted on any matter whatsoever.

"I am sure you understand," the spokesman said in response to a telephone call to the suite. Personal visits were precluded. "Please understand our position."

The speaker at the telephone in the king's suite, amazed by the suggestion that he identify himself, had only a single sentence regarding the outcome of the plebiscite:

"There is now no longer any doubt that the people of Greece want their king back."

If the Greeks recall their king, "then he will go back," the spokesman said, and if not, "then he will not go back."

As the voting day approached, an increasing number of telephone calls were received at Claridge's switchboard for the king. But only a few were put through to the royal suite. And only a very few callers had been admitted in the 10 days or so since the king went into seclusion.

A drastic change in the atmosphere around the suite was evident. The royal aides, always most cordial and helpful to legitimate callers, gave firmly insistent negatives to requests for information. They refused to refer questions to the king, as they had done heretofore.

They would not even guess when George would go back to Greece, if the plebiscite results opened the way.

He arrived in England Sept. 23, 1941, after leaving Greece just ahead of the speedy Nazi mobile forces and traveling by way of Crete and North Africa.

JANE MINER IS BRIDE OF MARTIN F. MORITZ

Ceremony Takes Place In St. Peter's Catholic Church; Reception Held at Sky Club.

ST. PETER'S CATHOLIC CHURCH was the scene of the wedding yesterday morning of Miss Jane Frances Miner and Martin F. Moritz. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Miner, of Columbus, and Mr. Moritz is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moritz, Woodward avenue, this city.

Msgr. R. C. Goebel united the couple in marriage before an altar banked with gladioli, aster, palms and ferns.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Miner wore a white slipper satin and net wedding gown with long sleeves and a full train. A victorian head band of lace and net trimmed with stephanotis held the fingertip veil in place. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis and gardenias with a white orchid and ostrich plumes.

Attending the bride were Mrs. Marion Mayer, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, and Miss Loretta Anne Fink as bridesmaid. Both wore gowns of white organza with off-the-shoulder necklines and full skirts. They wore sprays of red roses and white ostrich plumes and carried fans of white ostrich plumes with gardenias and red roses, tied with hand painted ribbons.

P. F. Moritz served as his brother's best man with William Michael and Gerald Miner, brother of the bride, acting as ushers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Miner chose a pearl gray crepe dress with black accessories and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Moritz was gowned in black crepe with black accessories and an orchid corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony the newlyweds received approximately 50 guests at a wedding breakfast held at the Sky Club.

The table was decorated with bowls of asters, garden flowers, roses and delphinium.

When leaving for her wedding trip west, the new Mrs. Moritz wore a black summer sheer dress trimmed in black crepe with black accessories and lime topcoat. Her corsage was a white orchid.

The couple will be at home to friends after Sept. 15 at 24 Helen avenue.

The bride was graduated from St. Peter's high school and attended Mt. Carmel School of Nursing. At present she is employed at the Fox jewelry store and is a member of the Epsilon Iota chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority here.

Mr. Moritz, also a graduate of St. Peter's high school, was graduated from Dayton university, and is a veteran of three years in the U. S. Army in the European theater of war. He is associated with his father in business here.

Guests attended the wedding from Columbus, Detroit, and Jersey City, N. J.

The Berle-ing Point.

This is really something. I never thought I'd get to write a Broadway column without buying a night club first . . . But then I come from a long line of reporters and newspaper critics. In fact, my grandfather, Pulitzer Berle, was a drama critic until his paper fired him . . . Dorothy told me she wanted this column to sparkle . . . so I'm typing it on rhinestones. She said she wanted everything in this column, so the only thing I'm leaving is lanolin. But getting back to me, I cut my eye teeth on newspapers . . . Mother couldn't afford a teething ring. Journalism was always in my veins . . . maybe that's why I had no room for blood. Why, as a boy I was always the first on the street with the news—until my chalk gave out. At one time I could have covered all of Broadway. Friends told me I had the figure for it. Before I continue, one word of warning: don't tear down my column . . . remember what happened to Samson!

Who'd ever think that Climalene would play "hard to get" just when you need it most?

When this year started, we had big plans to give you all the Climalene you needed to make soap go farther, to give whiter washes, and to help with your housecleaning.

Then came raw material shortages. Our factories didn't have an ounce of Climalene to ship for months. Grocers sold out, and started shouting for more. "Our customers insist on Climalene," they kept telling us—and still raw material shortages continued.

MORE CLIMALENE COMING SOON

At last we have good news for you. Climalene is in production again. It's being rushed to the grocers as fast as we can ship it. The demand is tremendous.

You may not be able to get a package of Climalene every time you ask for it. So, be sure to keep asking.

Washington Letter.

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — "Operation Goodwill" is having a jolly fine time in this country."

"Operation Goodwill" is the code word adopted by 230 young Royal Air Force fliers for their visit to the United States. They were invited over here to participate in the U. S. Army Air Forces Day program at Los Angeles.

A spokesman for the group said he believed the invitation to come see America and have a good time was a gesture toward repaying the Britishers for their hospitality to American men during the war.

* * *

WELL, they're having fun. The climate sort of knocked them out the first few days. They're not used to heat and humidity in England such as you find in Washington, Texas, New York and, yes—California.

They arrived in the United States in July, fair-skinned and a bit on the pale side. Now they are almost black from daily swims and sunbathing.

Most of the youngsters—their average age is between 22 and 23—had to work up to the big meals they're getting here. Diets are still pretty thin in England and the boys hadn't had steak dinners such as they found here in many a day.

They liked Hollywood, where they were entertained lavishly by blondes and bigwigs. A great many Hollywood beauties wrote their names on the 16 ships the boys came over in.

They never before had seen anything like the barbecue they went to in Texas. They don't have barbecues in England.

They had two big thrills during their visit in Washington. They flew over the White House and the Capitol building—the first to fly over the two structures since before the war. They had to get special permission to do this. They made a long-anticipated tour of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and talked with the G-man Chief J. Edgar Hoover.

Commanding officer of "Operation Goodwill" is Group Capt. Richard Collard. In his early thirties, of medium height and good-looking with fair curly hair and blue eyes. Capt. Collard was in the German prison camp, Stalag Luft 3

He was commandant of the camp, appointed by the Germans. He was in charge of 17,000 imprisoned American, British and Russian aviation officers. It was the camp where there was the largest number of escape attempts. It is believed Collard organized most of these.

* * *

THE boys are rather shy and, as one of their own group said, "inclined to be stuffy," but once they catch on in a town they make many friends.

"We love the girls, but we aren't wolves," said this same chap.

The fliers are taking nylons to the girls back home In San Antonio, Tex., an organized group of 160 British war brides arranged for a local shopkeeper to sell each flier one pair. The boys also bought cowboy outfits, cosmetics and toys . . . all impossible to get in their own country.

Household Hints

Keep poultry cool. It's a highly perishable food. When you get a chicken or turkey from the market, wash it thoroughly inside and out, dry well and store it in the refrigerator until time to cook.

Cotton curtains can be fireproofed by dipping in a solution made of seven ounces of borax and three ounces of boric acid, dissolved in two quarts of hot water.

If you want beets to have a rich red color when cooked, do not peel or break off the skin when preparing them. You can bake beets by preparing as you would for boiling, rub surfaces with oil and bake until tender.

The globe artichoke, an unopened flower bud, grows on a strong thistle-like plant, and like any other flower bud shows quality in color and outward appearance. One that is top notch will have tightly clinging, fleshy-leaf scales of a good green color Avoid any showing a brownish color or having dark surface spots, for they will turn black when cooked.

Do not turn off the motor when defrosting the home freezer for it causes the freezer to warm up too quickly.

In opening the bidding at third-hand position with a hand so weak in honor strength that you would not bid it originally in any other position, it is wise to look forward. Anticipating the probable course of the bidding, it is well to protect yourself against crowding your side too high. Furthermore, it is advisable to give yourself all possible leeway to indicate that your hand is lacking in particular strength. Paying heed to those factors can often assure you a plus instead of a minus score.

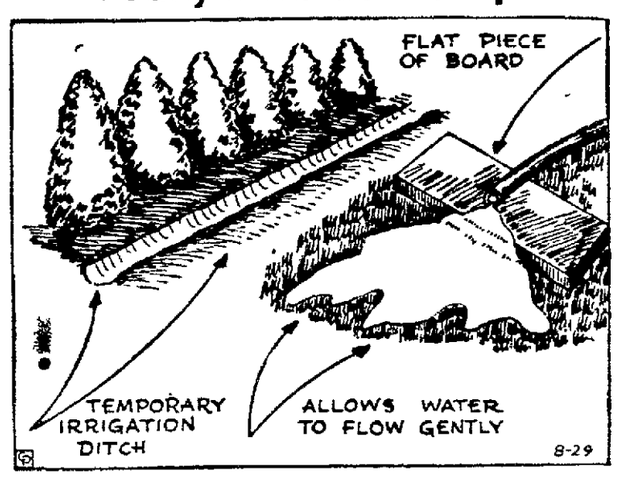
How quickly the bidding climbed up at Table 1, to the three level on South's second bid. The latter didn't know what to do after North's 3-No Trumps, so passed and hoped for the best. The best was one down after East led the diamond 4.

At Table 2, South realized after North's 2-Hearts that his spade opening had crowded the bidding He tried to sign off by rebidding his spades instead of showing his clubs, but North wouldn't shut up South made his hand sound like six spades and four clubs, so he was put into the former suit, in which he lost two clubs, two spades and a diamond and was down one.

South, at Table 3, noted that North's probable response would be in hearts, so kept it low by starting with 1-Club. In his eventual contract, after warning North plenty about his weakness, he got an extra trick by virtue of help from the defense, but had all sorts of plays for his contract, no matter what the defense did.

Today's Garden-Graph



Irrigating to Offset Fall Drought

Some seasons in some sections of the country gardens and home plantings suffer from fall droughts. When a prolonged dry spell threatens trees, shrubs and flowers, special methods of watering must be undertaken to save them. Evergreens especially need plenty of water in order to go through the winter in safety.

Evergreen plantings, shrub borders and rose beds can be benefited by digging temporary irrigation ditches, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Fill them with water at intervals so the roots of the plants can soak up needed moisture. They do not always get sufficient quantities from mere surface watering.

Make the trenches from 3 to 8 inches deep. A narrow bed should have one trench through the center, a wide bed may require two. Allow the water to run slowly into the trench for several hours Often it is best to fill the trench with water, allow it to seep down to the roots of the plants and then refill the trench.

A method of floow-watering flower beds during hot weather or severe dry spells also is illustrated. Remove the nozzle from the hose and allow the water to flow gently until the subsoil is soaked. Laying the end of the hose on a piece of flat board, as illustrated, prevents the washing away of the soil around the roots of the plants.

Early morning watering is best, since fungus diseases, such as mildew, are much more likely to develop on wet foliage during the night This is especially true in the case of roses, delphiniums and the perennial phloxes.

PLANS APPROVED

CHICAGO —(INS)— Plans for completing the interior of the famed Baha'i temple in suburban Wilmette, at an estimated cost of $350 000, have been approved. The temple is the headquarters of a universal religious faith announced in Persia in 1819.

Bedtime Stories

—By Thornton W. Burgess

A HAPPY ENDING

The seeming worst that can attend
May prove good fortune in the end.

—Old Mother Nature.

He settled down to the business of eating and forgot everything else.

In all the Great World there was no more frightened small person than Little Wobblenose, the small grandson of Peter Rabbit, but there was one other just as frightened. It was Chucky, the young grandson of Johnny Chuck. The same thing had happened to both. They had been caught in traps in Farmer Brown's garden and now were prisoners. They were not hurt in the least, just terribly frightened. Those traps were not the wicked kind with cruel steel jaws that hurt frightfully and often break legs. They were box traps like little windowless houses with doors closed. What had closed those doors the prisoners had no idea at all. It didn't enter their heads that they had been closed by themselves when they began to eat the bait that had tempted them inside.

When those doors banged shut the little prisoners had been terribly frightened. They couldn't have been more frightened. It was the kind of fright called terror. In their short lives they never had known such fright. They had been scared. Of course. All little folks, and most big ones, are scared at times. But terror is a very different thing.

Of course neither knew that the other had been caught. Perhaps had they been in the same trap their fright would have been a little less. Fright when alone always seems greater than when shared with others. The feeling that they had to stay right where they were where they could do little more than turn around was dreadful. The feeling of dread of what might happen to them next was worse. For a long time each crouched in a corner of his prison in suspense. That is the feeling that something bad is going to happen but not knowing what.

When nothing did happen they gradually felt less frightened, their fear no longer great enough to be called terror. After a while Little Wobblenose noticed that that delicious smell that had tempted him into that trap was still there, stronger than ever. He wasn't too scared to be hungry. He nibbled at the carrot with which the trap had been baited. He settled down to the business of eating and forgot everything else. Satisfying a good appetite is a form of happiness. While that carrot lasted he was happy. Much the same thing was happening to the little Chuck in that other trap in another part of the garden.

A full stomach makes one sleepy. Little Wobblenose dozed. He was awakened by sounds outside, the more frightening because they were unfamiliar. First he heard footsteps coming nearer and nearer. Then he heard a sound he had never heard before. It brought back the terror he had felt when he had found himself caught. It was the voice of Farmer Brown's boy. He was calling to his father.

"I think I've caught both the rascals!" he cried.

"Now that you have caught them what are you going to do with them, keep them for pets?" called Farmer Brown.

"That would mean shutting them up in pens, making prisoners of them. I don't want prisoners for pets. If they had been born in a pen and known nothing else for a home it would be different. Or if they had to be shut up to keep them out of mischief it would be different. But they are just little misplaced persons, so I am going to take them where they will no longer be misplaced and won't be likely to get misplaced again," said Farmer Brown's boy.

Then Little Wobblenose had a strange and terrible feeling. The trap had been picked up and was being carried. Such a feeling of helplessness! What dreadful thing would happen next? If only he could see where he was going and what was happening! But he couldn't. What a dreadful place the Great World was after all! He felt very small and helpless and, oh, so afraid.

In the other trap, also being carried, the little Woodchuck felt the same way. After what seemed a long, long time the great adventure of the two little misplaced people came to an end. It was a happy ending. Yes, sir, it was a happy ending. Can you guess what it was?

Try and Stop Me

At a recent stockholders' meeting of the United States Steel Corporation, Chairman Olds introduced various officials of the company, and was just preparing to take up the day's business, when one stockholder in the rear got up.

"Who are you and what do you do for this company?" the stockholder yelled.

"I'm your chairman," laughed Olds, not in the least disconcerted. "Of course you know the duties of a chairman. I'd say he was roughly the equivalent of parsley on a platter of fish."

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills. —Adv.

'Lost Souls' Rush to Join 'Legion of Forgotten Men'

ROME—(INS)—The Italian recruiting office of the French Foreign Legion is doing a prosperous business these days, despite lack of display advertising in the local press and gaudy-colored posters.

It is estimated that nearly 3,000 men have been shipped from Naples to Oran since the French started their sub-rosa post-war legion recruiting work in Italy. Source material is here in abundance — Allied deserters, escaped German prisoners, Italian ex-fascists, Poles, displaced Jews, war criminals — men who have something to forget, men who are hunted. The Legion offers them seclusion from the world.

Advance agents for the "recruiting office" have in many cases been the Moroccoan troops used by France during the war and routine guard duty at French establishments. Should the would-be recruit decide to join up whether it be at Milan, Genoa or Naples the whole matter can be taken care of in a few minutes—over a jug of wine—in the back room of a secluded section of the town.

Refuge.

Since the war the Legion has been the refuge of many of the small fry fascists hounded by vindictive Italians from the days of the liberation. Now that a general amnesty has come to Italy there will be a slackening in the recruiting activity from this direction. However, the Legion still offers a singular attraction for the physically eligible destitute and weary Italians.

Every week, anywhere from 20 to 50 of the neo-legionnaires, armed with a train ticket, 20 cigarets and 500 lire begin their trip to Naples. They stay in Naples until a quota is filled for the boat which will take them to Oran where they are formally taken into the Foreign Legion for a five-year enlistment.

EX-GI'S BAND TOGETHER TO BUILD HOMES

Cooperative Effort Enables Veterans Overcome Red Tape Deadlock.

TOLEDO—(AP)—Fifteen veterans in suburban Maumee, O., grabbed the housing shortage by its red-taped forelock through one of the nation's first GI co-operatives.

Together, they contracted for $150,000 worth of postwar homes. The first of them will be occupied Sept. 1.

Right at their heels, 24 Columbus, O., veterans formed the Community Veterans Home association, which served as a bargaining agent in purchasing 24 lots and contracting for as many new homes.

The big value of these cooperative associations, the veterans found, was in the slashing of red tape and in overcoming the reluctance of busy contractors to take individual jobs.

Construction of the Maumee homes began July 8, and from 5 p. m. to dark each week day and all day Sundays the veterans and their families gather around to watch their housing nightmares turn into fulfillment of a daydream.

One man handled most of the leg work for all 15 Toledo veterans—dealing with material delays, paper examining, title clearing and the like.

The cooperative members, meantime, surveyed their individual situations. They set up a priority list based on personal hardships and J. P. Read, the association chairman, won the right to occupy the first completed house.

The Reads—consisting of Read, his wife and two children, Barbara Ann, 3, and Martha Jane, 2—currently make their home with an uncle.

"This is the first project of this kind we know of in this five-state region and possibly the whole country," said J. L. Wadsworth, Cleveland district director of the Federal Housing administration.

It might even carry off honors in an all-veteran contest, too, for the contractors are two former army air forces pilots, Howard Schneider and Lee Shrewsbury.

The Columbus project had a more unusual beginning, for it grew out of a church luncheon. The veterans attending were asked by church members what they needed most—a leading question in the crowded state capital.

"We need homes," the group chorused, and so the first community church stirred around to see what could be done. The church-sponsored association was the result.

The 24 homes which were started this month will cost $8,500 each, which with the $1,500 lots makes each veteran's bill $10,000. Payments, as at Maumee, will run about $63 monthly.

The Maumee organization was termed the Inwood Place association, a non-profit organization with each member having a participating interest. A truly co-operative twist was given the arrangements when the association decided to purchase two extra lots at the rear of the home sites to be used as a recreation area for the 30 adults and 15 children.

This organization goes somewhat further than the Columbus group, in which each association member assumes his own contractual obligations in purchasing and financing the homes. The Columbus organization acts only as a functional organization and bargaining agent.

Anyway the veterans figure it, however, they turned the trick. They are getting housing.

FRUIT CROPS

ITHACA, N. Y. —(INS)— Supplies of apples, pears, peaches, and grapes are expected to be much better this year in New York State than last. The New York apple crop is estimated at 11.9 million bushels, the State College of Agriculture reports.

Driving Tractor Helps Co-ed To Pay Way Through College

ITHACA, N. Y. —(INS)— One of the most unusual jobs to help out with college expenses is that used by Betty Day of Canandaigua, a junior in the College of Home Economics at Cornell university. For the past two summers Betty has driven a tractor. With the help of a younger brother, she has used her father's hay baler to do custom baling for about twenty farmers in Ontario county.

The hay baler picks hay from the field, packs it, and ties it in bales weighing from 70 to 100 pounds. "In one day of steady work," Betty says, "as many as 1,200 bales can be put out.

"We started our work about ten o'clock in the morning because the dew is usually heavy until then. But before baling began, the machines had to be greased and the twine box filled," she explained. "The first year we used wire, which was rather hard to manage, but the next year the bales were bound in cord. This was much less trouble, and almost as effective.

Worked Into Night.

"Unless we ate box lunches in the shade of the field, we had our 'noon meal' before we started work in the morning so that the baling could go on without stopping until the job is done. Sometimes, when rain was predicted, or when there was an unusually large amount of hay to bale, we worked into the night, using lights attached to the tractor and baler until the dew came."

Betty was an active 4-H worker for many years. She exhibited at state and county fairs, winning prizes for baked goods, clothing, livestock, and demonstrations. "I have yet to win a first prize for sponge cake," she admitted.

In a western New York junior egg show, Betty and her brother Harold, won first prize for their exhibits, 'I raised sheep and chickens, made projects for style shows, and learned to identify common insect pests and weeds," she added. Betty was on the county insect identification team that went to state fairs for two years.

This year Betty has accepted a summer job as 4-H assistant extension agent. She has prepared for this work in her college course.

PLANS SERIES OF AIRPLANE STORM TESTS

Research Pilot Will Attempt to Gain Answers to Bad Weather Flying.

WRIGHT FIELD, Ohio—(INS)—A series of thunderstorm detection tests will be made by Trans World research pilot, Robert Buck, in a P-61, the AAF's famed "Black Widow," during flights scheduled soon.

The plane, loaned to Trans World Airline by the Air Material Command at Wright Field, O., and equipped with the necessary electronics equipment for turbulence or storm detection, will be delivered to Kansas City, Mo, soon.

The tests are aimed to wipe some of the uncertainty from that bugaboo of all flying—storm turbulances. The main purpose of the flights is to ascertain what types of storms may be flown through safely and what should be avoided. The information thus gained will be made available to all interested flying agencies.

No Safe Pattern.

Information on the type of electronic equipment aircraft should carry which will enable their pilots to ferret out storms and their dangers also will be learned.

According to Col. J. M. Gillespie, chief of the All-Weather Flying Center at Wright Field, some tests along this line have been made, and are being made now at Wright Field. As yet, however, no workable pattern for pilots to follow in regard to different types of storm turbulences and their relative danger to flying safety has been set up.

The flights will be made in areas where storms are most prevalent at the time of the tests.

Bob Buck, pilot of the P-61 is a former chief pilot for the airline and was awarded the Air Medal recently by Lt. General Ira C. Eaker, deputy commander and chief of air staff for his 1943-44 weather assignments carrying him more than one hundred sixty thousand miles.

Recently Buck was named research pilot by TWA, specializing in thunderstorm activity research flying He and a special crew will be assigned to the P-61 and their findings reported to Wright Field for general usage.

The P-61 was chosen for the flight because of its strong construction which enables it to withstand large gust loads, and its capability of being equipped with radar instruments for storm detection A radar operator also can be carried in the plane

Buck and his P-61 crew returned last March from a 3,200 mile flight around the world in an Air Materiel Command B-17 which sought out the world's worst weather conditions

MARY LOU LLEWELN, arrested as a bigamist and held in federal court under bail at Philadelphia, married three servicemen and received triple allotment checks. She has promised to return money for federal checks. (International)

Jack Lait — On Broadway

"THE FRONT PAGE" is about to be revived for Broadway presentation. An interesting and amusing comedy, this, by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, both former Chicago reporters. It purports to portray goings-on in the old criminal courts building there.

I hope Ben and Charlie will forgive me if I say it is a fabric of nimble imagination, but nothing like what went on in that gloomy old castle which I covered. The star newsman, whom they dub "Hildy Johnson," never in my time worked in the building. His name was Hilding; he was one of several brothers, newspapermen, of whom Al, for the City Press Ass'n, was the criminal courts man.

Al's secret passion was to be an acrobat. He practiced and trained with other semi-pros and they would get an occasional night's job at a Turner Hall turnout, etc. For this they had a "line of paper"—some printed bills to post around any place they played. That gave me and Al an idea.

We had a sheriff, Tom Barrett, a well-dressed board of trade man, recently elected. Tom was a gentleman. The job was a fee office then, and paid well. But what Tom hadn't thought of was that the sheriff of Cook county had to hang people. His first such job was on Frank Lewandowski, who had cut his wife's throat and his own. She died, he didn't. He was sentenced to the gallows in that building.

Barrett was nervous and drawn as the fatal Friday morning (we always hung 'em on Fridays there) approached. Al and I, who had covered many such events, went to Al's printer and put in an order. Overnight, we "sniped" posters all around the neighborhood, and when Tom, pale and jittery, got near his jail that morning, he saw an array of them, reading:

Thomas Barrett Presents
1—Performance Only—1
FRANK LEWANDOWSKI
In His Spectacular Specialty
"THE FLOORLESS DANCE"

Barret almost passed out.

He had a warrant issued for John Doe and Richard Roe, for defacing property. I guess it's still out. He never discovered who perpetrated the grisly gag.

That was the spirit of the criminal courts building those days.

I'm not too proud of that macabre joke. But we were young and we were hard, for we lived in a daily atmosphere of crime and tragedy.

Al and his partners did a show in the jail chapel one night for 400 prisoners, seven of whom were under the sentence of death. The applause was terrific. I brought my bride-to-be along. She was treated with deference.

Fellow-reporters on the beat were Ernie Stout, Clare Snively (later to be police chief of Los Angeles), Walter Noble Burns, who wrote the saga of "Billy the Kid," white-haired Bill Culver and Sam Lederer.

Our pressroom was no lunatic asylum like the one set up in "The Front Page." We did plenty of kidding and horseplaying, but long hours of hard, wearing work, too.

Charles S. Deneen, the state's (district) attorney, was elected governor of Illinois. He offered me the job of warden of Joliet. My bride didn't think she'd like to live in a penitentiary. I refused it. The wife of the man who accepted it was attacked and murdered by a lifer in the warden's quarters a month or so later.

Pegler — Fair Enough

NEW YORK—I hope I never grow up to political maturity because if I should then I might accept as mere routine politics the present attempt of Governor Tom Dewey and the executive committee of the Republican state committee to ditch Maj.-Gen. William J. Donovan and nominate instead Lieut.-Gen. Hugh A. Drum as the candidate for the United States senate at the Republican state convention in Saratoga on Sept. 3.

* * *

General Donovan's defects in this case are virtues and General Drum's virtues are faults.

* * *

Donovan is so strong in his own right that he doesn't have to commit himself to support Governor Dewey in the 1948 presidential contest. He is big and strong enough politically to be his own man in the campaign without personal obligation to Dewey. This is why Dewey is against him.

General Drum is just a nice old retired army officer who has been selected by the Dewey group as a gentle, docile pet who could be swept along in the wake of Dewey's rush and would owe his election to Dewey. The governor is about as sure a thing for re-election as we ever find in politics and he figures that if he can elect a senator who would owe everything to him it would be folly to let the convention nominate Donovan, who then would stand alone and not in Dewey's shadow. Nobody ever heard of Drum in politics until a few days ago.

This opposition to Donovan is all Dewey's doing and it demonstrates a personal characteristic that Tom's friends as well as his opponents have noted. He is unwilling to risk the presence on the ticket of a big man, a man with strength, and I think he does, in believing that he could elect Drum over Herbert Lehman, because Drum is no naive and his selection would be so belittling to him that the Democrats would much prefer him to Donovan as an opponent.

It is no pleasure to comment thus on a respected friend, but General Drum should have realized that his position here would be undignified almost to the point of servility and I think he must know that this little trick is no compliment or favor to him but rather the reverse.

Dewey didn't select him because he thought Drum would make as good a senator as General Donovan or a good senator, period. This was no gesture of personal friendship, except to Dewey. He picked General Drum because he figured he would be a "seat" in the senate, not a senator, and a faithful political supporter of Tom Dewey for the presidential nomination.

The very fact that General Drum would accept this status, in itself, constitutes a strong campaign argument against him, the stronger by contrast with Donovan's independence to say nothing of his other points of superiority. Drum could lose and I think he would.

General Drum is under personal obligations to Dewey already through his appointment to the position of commander of the state guard. He has done uncommonly well since his retirement from the regular army for, in addition to his pension, he gets a salary from the state and another from the Empire State building where he succeeded Al Smith by appointment of John J. Raskob.

In 1944 he accompanied Dewey on the campaign trip through the west just as military dressing. Roosevelt had the advantage of Dewey with generals and admirals throwing salutes at him all over the place and side-boys and his own household garrison of guards stationed on his place at Hyde Park and General Drum was taken along with Dewey to show his three stars and for no other purpose. He wasn't even a member of the family circle in the private car at the rear end of the train and he couldn't give Dewey any advice on the way of the war because he freely said he had no access to war department information, being retired.

Governor Dewey's record as governor has been so fine and his exploitation of that record so skillful that, as I say, he can't fail to be re-elected unless he drops dead.

But, as to the presidential nomination in 1948, he has done himself harm rather than good because he indicates that he would place personal subservience and loyalty above ability and independence in order to maintain himself on an eminence. The quality of his own personal friendship comes into question, too, when we find him pushing a nice old guy out there to be clawed up just for his sake.

GRONINGEN, Holland — (AP) — Playing of national anthems in honor of the 20 chess masters from 13 countries competing in a four-weeks tournament here is causing some confusion and bringing not a few mixed memories to the contenders.

* * *

Most of the participants in the tournament, which ends Sept. 7, can claim at least two nationalities, and a jig-saw puzzle could not be more fascinating than trying to sort out the international hodge-podge.

* * *

At one of the official dinners, the Belgian anthem was played for Irish-born Alberic O'Kelly de Galway, and the Polish anthem for Michiel Najdorf, a resident of Argentina for eight years, who stood in rapt attention when the Argentine national song was sung for Carlos Guimard of Buenos Aires.

But the Polish tune undoubtedly sounded familiar to Russian-born Dr. Xavielly Tartakower, a former Polish citizen, who now is French. The orchestra played the Marsellaise for him and for Russian-born Dr. Ossip Bernstein, but both were more than casually acquainted with the Russian anthem played for the five Soviet representatives.

The Hungarian national song was for Laszlo Szabo, but indirectly, too, for the American Herman Steiner of Los Angeles. But Steiner, if his memories went back far enough, also probably was moved by the Czech anthem played for Cenek Kottnauer, for he came originally from a region alternately belonging to Hungary and Czechoslovakia. The Russian Szalo Flohr also was once a Czech.

The American champion Arnold S. Denker, although born of German parents, could listen to the Star Spangled Banner with undivided allegiance, as could 21-year-old Abe Yanovsky to the Canadian anthem since he was only four months old when his parents left their home in Polish territory which now is Russian.

The situation was simple for Dr. Max Euwe of the Netherlands, Erik Lundin and Gosta Stoltz of Sweden and Martin Christoffel of Switzerland, but less so for tournament director Hans Kmoch, an Austrian who is applying for Dutch citizenship.

The climax of confusion came when the orchestra began to play the Yugoslavian anthem. Everyone stood up, but after the first few notes, Yugoslav Professor Milan Vidmar of Ljubljana, whose brother is president of the Slovenian republic, sat down again, because, he said:

"There is too much difference between the old and the new time and between the old and the new anthem that I should remain upright."

STUDY NEED FOR CREATION OF JUDGE'S POST

Bar Committee to Consider Ways to Meet Growing Delinquency Problem.

Feasibility of the creation of a domestic relations court in Richland county or establishment of some more efficient means of dealing with problems involving broken homes and dependent children will be studied by a Richland County Bar committee named last night by Henry P. Huston, president.

The group was asked to report its findings at the November meeting of the bar association.

Need for an additional judge, or creation of some means for additional assistance, was set forth in a recent independent survey of the barristers that showed two thirds of the cases in common pleas court involved divorce actions and that a large percentage of the cases in juvenile court were those involving children of the divorced couples.

Both courts are congested with inadequate time for investigations and study of such cases. Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, of common pleas court, and Stuart S. Cramer, of juvenile and probate court, pointed out in asking for a study of the matter.

The group aims to study youth's problems and means of forestalling delinquency along with plans for obtaining closer relationship between the courts.

Attorneys appointed on the board include C. H. Henkel, chairman; C. H. Huston, former common pleas judge, Robert Green of Shelby; John L. Catlett and C. J. Anderson, former probate and juvenile judge.

Lawyers Return to 'Good Old Days' at Their Annual Picnic

By ARTHUR ANDERSON

Richland county attorneys went back 50 years in county court history for the theme of their annual picnic yesterday afternoon at the Atty. A. S. Beach cottage at Wildwood Springs near Newville.

Theme of the party was "When Beach Was Clerk of Courts" and that meant a "field day" for the veteran Mansfield attorney who was host at the party. Atty. Beach enjoys nothing more than recalling the colorful history of county courts in the 1890's when he held an office at the courthouse.

The while haired but active Richland county clerk of courts of 50 years ago, who during the afternoon frolic had shown many of the younger picnickers how to make clay pigeons explode in mid-air, with the aid of a shotgun, demonstrated that his wit and humor were on a par with his shooting eye and that neither had been dulled by the passing years.

"Those were the days when lawyers couldn't whisper to the judge during the trial," Beach said, drawing a chuckle from his listeners, "because the bench 50 years ago was seven feet high and a railing ran in front of it."

"In 1896 when Judge Norman Wolfe examined his trial docket he found 520 cases, only six of which were divorce cases. Now we find 640 cases on the docket 470 of which are for divorce and alimony or both," Beach said.

Beach told of buying the first typewriter to be put in use in the courthouse for the clerk's office in 1897 and of a journal entry approving its use for the preparing of court records by using loose leaf pages that could be bound when a book was completed.

Previous to that time all records were written with a pen in longhand.

The entire theme of yesterday's program was developed around the time "When Beach was Clerk of Courts" and the younger barristers were "just born 50 years too late."

The picnic meal included roasting ears, chicken and cantaloupe. It was prepared by "Bill" Miller of Mansfield.

Guests, besides several county officials, were Judge Charles Montgomery, Newark, of the Fifth district court of appeals, Judge Edgar Martin of the Huron county common pleas court, and two candidates for the court of appeals, C. B. McClintock of Canton and Arthur Limbach of New Philadelphia.

Marion Ward was named program chairman for the September meeting to be held in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

CAN EAT

Born Without Esophagus, Lad Will Soon Get First Meal.

NEW YORK —(INS)— Eleven-year-old Robert Linsig of Marlboro, N. Y., faced the happy prospect today—thanks to medical science—that he may soon eat his first meal.

Robert, born without an esophagus, has been fed since birth through an external opening cut in his tomach. Otherwise he has been healthy and normal.

A week ago he survived an initial operation at Columbia Presbyterian Medical center, although doctors gave him only a 10-1 chance. A comparatively minor second operation 10 days hence will provide him with a tube from his mouth to his stomach—composed of a section removed from his small intestine.

LIKE THE FARM—

A Hammond avenue man thinks he might as well be living on a farm, for all the sleep he gets early in the morning. He asked police today to do something about a rooster that crows at dawn every day, disturbing his slumbers. What the officers can do to convince a rooster he shouldn't exercise his voice at sunrise wasn't determined immediately. But police frequently are asked to perform difficult tasks and they may have an answer to this question.

TO FAST TO LAST—

A Scholl road resident returned to Mansfield today with a story of a fellow motorist who drove at top speed because his gas was getting low, and ran out of gas. The speeder passed the Mansfielder in Iowa about 6:30 a. m. at a rate of somewhere near 80 miles an hour. A few miles farther, the Mansfielder was waved to a stop and obliged the motorist by pushing his gasless car nine miles into the next town.

CIVILIANS CAN HANDLE TASK, SAYS THOMAS

No Need For Large Overseas Forces, Thinks Military Affairs Chairman.

WASHINGTON — (INS)— Senator Thomas (D., Utah), chairman of the senate military affairs committee, proposed today that the United States immediately withdraw its large occupation armies from overseas.

Thomas said they should be replaced by token forces staffed largely with civilians recruited from native populations.

The senator expressed belief that there was no need to retain large military forces in Japan, Germany and Austria, but did not hazard a guess as to how long it would take to make the change.

He told a reporter:

"There is no need to keep large armies overseas. What do you need them for? To guard supplies? We can hire thousands of Japanese for that purpose who would be delighted to work for us. The same goes for the Germans."

As for coping with possible civilian disorders, Thomas said the native police could be relied upon for that. He pointed out that the occupation authorities could select men for police duties "whom we know we can trust."

Gen. Eisenhower, army chief of staff, testified earlier this year before the house appropriations committee that "we must look forward . . . to the next three years as a minimum," when asked how long the United States would have to keep occupation forces overseas.

Cardinals Stretch National League Lead to 1½ Games

Hal Clawson

Some of the "salty" lads from the Mohican Sailing club have had their anger stirred up after reading stories about their weekly Sunday afternoon races.

Ol' sea-faring Clawson has been caught with his sails down and with a good breeze coming in across Charles Mill lake.

Paul "Whizzer" White finally got around to speaking a piece in behalf of the sailors from down Charles Mill way.

"Each Monday's edition of the N-J sports page carries a Mohican Sailing club racing story that is a little misleading," writes Paul.

"It usually carries a lead starting out 'the feature race' of 'in the feature race' and then tells about that race as taking in the Y-Flyer or scow class," continues Paul.

But Sailor Paul goes on to state that the Y-Flyers' race is not the day's top event.

The Inter-Lakes, Super-Sunray and the Prams all stage interesting races and have some of the finest skippers in the club.

* * *

"Also you may note," says White, "that last year the Inter-Lakes class beat the Y-Flyers' time for the season record and I believe that if you check the records for this season you will find that the Inter-Lakes' time is either ahead or at least very close to the Flyers."

* * *

"The Super-Sunray have a lot of good competition in their class. It is no easy push-over to skipper a Pram around the course in a blow and these skippers are in just as tough a battle as the Flyers."

The reason we have written the Y-Flyers up as the feature race was simply because their race usually appeared first on the results turned in and, from watching one race, we also realized that it had more entrants than the other classes and that the times were usually a little faster.

Although we have already personally talked it over with Paul, we want to make sure that the skippers of the Prams, Super-Sunrays and Inter-Lakes boats understand why the Y-Flyers were played up.

Paul has set us on a straight course and if no one rocks the boat we'll be okay the rest of the way.

Players Given Voice In Game's Rules, Policies

CHICAGO—(AP)—The major league baseball owners, in an unprecedented move, have voted to put players on the game's new governing body and they will have a voice in the formulation of the game's rules and policies.

American and National league club bosses announced after a two-day meeting yesterday creation of a seven-member executive council, which will include a player representative from each league. In addition to the formation of the governing body, top news to come out of the magnates' meeting with Commissioner A. B. Chandler was the adoption of a 168-game playing schedule for 1947 and approval of all contractual demands asked by players.

The 1947 season will be the longest in major league history, starting April 15 and ending Sept. 28. The new season will be 14 games longer than the present 154-game slate, which has been standard since 1904.

Admission of the players to the new executive council was the outgrowth of two recent offensives—the attempt of Attorney Bob Murphy of Boston to unionize the athletes and the talent raids carried on by the Mexican league.

The new council also will include Chandler, Ford Frick and Will Harridge, presidents of the National and American leagues, respectively, and owner representative Larry MacPhail of the New York Yankees and Warren Giles of the Cincinnati Reds.

The method of selecting a player from each circuit to sit with the council is still to be determined.

The new council, which will be formally seated shortly after written signatures of the 16 club owners are obtained, will supplant the old advisory council whose membership included Commissioner Chandler, Harridge and Frick.

"This new council," Chandler said, "will be empowered to make legislation giving baseball a governing body the year round to amend rules and solve problems until the approval or disapproval at the joint meetings of the two leagues."

The magnates yesterday also unanimously approved all contractual demands asked by players in their "collective bargining" move, including a yearly minimum salary believed to be $5,000. Other proposals approved included a pension plan, modification of the 10-day release plan, extension of post-season exhibition play from 10 to 30 days and incidental spring training expenses, believed to be $25 per player a week.

Mat Bouts Set For Indoors

Promoter Earl Myers announced this morning that the card will go on indoors. It had been scheduled for the outside arena.

Opening the card at 8:30 will be Ace Abbott and Carlos Rodriqez. Both the main and semi-finals scraps are set for the two out of three fall route with a one-hour time limit.

CONFIRM INTEREST IN MILWAUKEE PURCHASE

BOSTON—(INS)—Boston Braves officials confirmed today that the club would like to buy the Milwaukee Brewers of the American Association.

They said, however, that before any negotiations could be made it would be necessary for the Braves to dispose of their interest in the Indianapolis club of the same league. The Braves were said to own 40 per cent of the Indianapolis stock.

FOX TO LIONS

SUPERIOR, Wis. — (UP) — The New York football Giants have traded Sam Fox, former Ohio State end, to the Detroit Lions for a player to be delivered later.

HEAD MEN IN THE MAJOR LEAGUES, Commissioner A. B. Chandler and representatives of the pennant contenders met in Chicago to set the dates for the world series. The series will open in the National league city on Oct. 2. Shown, left to right, are William Harridge, president of the American league; John Collins of the Dodgers, Chandler, Eddie Collins of the Red Sox and Ford Frick, president of the National league.

Bixler Hopes to Remedy Two Of Biggest OSU Problems

COLUMBUS, O. —(INS)— Ohio State Coach Paul Bixler put his finger on two of his biggest potential problems today and made overtures toward their remedy.

Bixler expressed dissatisfaction over his reserve strength at tackle and fullback.

He then proceeded to send Captain Warren Amling, who could and would play anywhere on the club, over to work with Assistant Coach Ernie Godfrey's tackles.

Bix also shifted Dave Templeton, the former Mansfield star, to fullback. Templeton had previously been listed as a tackle or quarterback.

Happiest over the Amling shift was Bob McGinnis, veteran guard, who thereby escaped being assigned as a tackle. McGinnis filled in at tackle as a freshman in 1944, and he still recalls the beating he took.

Kicking specialists came in for attention in yesterday's drills with both punters and placekickers showing their wares.

Four backs — Tommy James of Massillon, Dave Bonnie of Columbus, Rod Swinehart of Wooster and Tommy Phillips of Berea—did the punting together with Curly Morrison, Columbus end.

Two veteran specialists, John Stungis of Powhattan Point and Max Schnittker of Sandusky, worked on placements. So did three tackles—Andy Zeigler, Brenton Kirk of New Philadelphia and Emil Moldea of Cleveland—and Quarterback Bill Doolittle of Mansfield.

Salesbook 2nd In Shelby Loop

SHELBY — Undisputed second place in the second half of the Shelby Softball league is held by the Shelby Salesbook company after defeating the Laubie Shell Service Station, 5 to 3, Wednesday night on the Waterworks diamond.

It was the seventh win out of nine games for the Salesbook and the third loss out of nine for the Laubie nine.

"Flip" Harrer knocked a home run in the first inning to bring in two other runs. The Salesbook led 5 to 0 in the first inning. The Laubie team scored two runs in the fourth inning but was unable to overcome the Salesbook lead.

Because of darkness the game had to be called by Umpire Jim Yarman in the fifth inning. The league games are being moved up to 5:45 so that the entire seven innings can be played.

The CIO-Steelworkers will play the Depot at 5 45 p. m today on the Waterworks diamond in a postponed game.

Take Bargain Bill From Giants as Brooks Bow

Sessi's Pinch Homer Wins Nightcap; Yanks Beat Indians-Feller, 4 to 0.

By JOE REICHLER, AP Sports Writer.

Manager Eddie Dyer's knack of picking the right pinch hitter at the right time has moved the fast flying St. Louis Cardinals into a game and a half lead over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the sizzling National league pennant race.

Dyer put the finger on rookie Walter Sessi last night and the young outfielder, who had connected for only one hit in 11 official times at bat, came through with a two-run ninth inning homer which gave the Redbirds a 3-2 victory over the New York Giants and a sweep of the day and night doubleheader at St. Louis.

Earlier in the day, the Cards had broken their first place deadlock with the Dodgers by outslugging the Giants 13-8 while the Dodgers were bowing to the Chicago Cubs 4-3.

Two Cub runs in the last of the ninth proved the Dodgers' undoing, a few minutes after Peewee Reese's eighth inning triple had apparently won for Brooklyn. Trailing 3-2 in the ninth, the Bruins tied the score on Peanuts Lowrey's single followed by Marv Rickert's double. Hank Behrman, who had relieved Hal Gregg in the seventh, passed Bob Scheffing and Lou Stringer stung him for a payoff double that scored Rickert with the winning run.

With 71,551 cash customers, the largest crowd ever to see a night game, looking on at the Yankee stadium, the New York Yankees handed 22-game winner Bob Feller his 10th defeat when Ernie Bonham shut out the Cleveland Indians 4-0. Feller struck out only four batters in the seven innings he worked to raise his season's total to 284, thus falling behind in his attempt to pass Rube Waddell's record of 343 strikeouts.

In another night game, Orval Grove and the Chicago White Sox shaded Bobo Newsom and the Senators in Washington 2-1 in 12 innings.

With Denny Galehouse pitching two-hit ball, the St. Louis Browns shut out the Athletics in an afterdark game at Philadelphia, 7-0.

Cincinnati and the Braves divided a doubleheader, Johnny Sain recording his 15th victory in the 8-4 opening Boston success and Ewell Blackwell registering his fifth shutout in the Reds' 2-0 victory in the nightcap.

Detroit finally beat the Boston Red Sox after nine straight losses at Fenway park, downing the American league leaders 7-2.

Oscar Judd limited the Pirates to four hits and drove in two runs with a double as the Philadelphia Phils shoved Pittsburgh deeper into the National league cellar with a 4-1 night game triumph at Forbes field.

Galion VFW Organizes 11

GALION—Games with semi-pro teams of other towns are being sought by the semi-pro football team which is being organized here by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, it was announced today by the manager, Joe Tuscan.

Some 25 boys, mostly veterans with a gridiron drive, who played football in '36 and '39, were out for the organization meeting last night in the VFW post rooms, here.

Practice will start within the next two weeks under the direction of Robert Corry, former high school coach. They will be ready for games in about a month, and they want to play as many as possible this season. Practice will be held at the Heise park field.

Tentative plans are to play games on Sunday afternoons.

Teams wishing to play the Galion semi-pro team may contact Joseph Tuscan at the Veterans of Foreign Wars post, Galion.

100TH ANNIVERSARY

WORCESTER, Mass.—(INS)—Holy Cross College celebrates the 100th anniversary of the death of its founder, Bishop Benedict Joseph Fenwick, this year.

Joey Maxim's 'White Hope'

CAMDEN, N. J. —(AP)— Old Jack "Doc" Kearns, who piloted Jack Dempsey to the heavyweight championship two decades ago, today was back on the boxing big time with a new "white hope," Joey Maxim, of Cleveland.

Maxim last night turned one of boxing's biggest upsets in years when he gained a disputed 10-round decision over Jersey Joe Walcott before 7,709, Camden's largest outdoor boxing crowd in history, at the Camden ball park. Walcott weighed 192, Maxim 180.

Although Maxim's victory was tainted by the fact that Jersey Joe, being groomed for a possible title bout with Joe Louis, injured his hands in the second round and thereafter was unable to do his best, Kearns declared he was agreeable to a rematch "anytime to prove this was not a fluke."
